SOUTHERN NEWS VIA CINCINNATI.

CINCINNATI, Tuesday, May 13.

The Commercial has the following Southern news:

The Memphis Avalanche, of the 6th inst., says that [illegible] news from Richmond is painfully alarming. Gen. McClellan seems to have been gaining the more on the day. Richmond that Gen. Banks and the Shenandoah Troops got up for New-Orleans.

The Avalanche, of the same date, says of affairs in New-Orleans, that Mayor Monroe and all the Aldermen have been arrested for refusing to take the oath of allegiance to the United States and sent to prison. Great distress prevails in the city. Food of all kinds is extremely scarce. Flour is not to be had at any price. More of the Federal force is yet to be landed, and the river is full of Federal gunboats, mortarboats and transports.

The Avalanche says that the Congressional elections from Richmond had a very depressing effect, and it was believed it fully confirmed the early evacuation of Virginia. The policy of evacuating every city it played out. We have had precious little more territory that we can spare.

The Memphis Argus says that the Confederate loss at Shiloh in killed and wounded was 7,000.

The Memphis Argus, in an article on gunboats, says: "Thus far it must be confessed our attempts with the gunboats on the river have been a disgusting fizzle. The people know it, and so does the Government."

A correspondent of the Memphis Avalanche says that 25 per cent. of Bishop Polk's army was killed and wounded at Shiloh.

The Avalanche, of the 7th inst., says: "We have advices from New-Orleans up to Saturday, 11 A. M. Gen. Butler has taken the St. Charles Hotel for his headquarters. The Evans House on Poydras-street has been converted into a hospital. The Jackson Railroad depot was taken possession of on Saturday morning. The Federal pickets have been extended out as far as the crossing of the Jefferson and Jackson Railroads. Four gunboats and one transport started for Baton Rouge on Saturday morning. Several Federal regiments have been landed at New-Orleans. All the newspapers in New-Orleans are still published, though a Federal censor is placed over every office to examine all matter, and exclude whatever may prove pernicious to the Federal cause.

A proclamation from Gen. BUTLER was handed in to all the newspaper offices at New-Orleans, but they refused to publish it, when a guard was sent to the Picayune office, who took possession of it. Northern printers came from out fort, the proclamation set up, and worked off in the edition of the 2d instant, as follows:

PROCLAMATION OF GEN. BUTLER.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF, NEW-ORLEANS, May 1, 1862.

The City of New-Orleans and its environs, with all its interior and exterior defences, having surrendered to the combined naval and land forces of the United States, and being now in the occupation of the forces of the United States, who have come to restore order, maintain public tranquillity, and protect peace and quiet, under the laws and Constitution of the United States, the Major-General Commanding hereby proclaims the object and purpose of the Government of the United States in this military occupation of New-Orleans and the State of Louisiana, and the rules and regulations by which the laws of the United States will be, for the present and during the state of war, enforced and administered for the plain guidance of all good citizens of the United States, as well as others who may have heretofore been in rebellion against their authority. Twice before has the city of New-Orleans been rescued from the hands of a foreign Government and restored to more enlightened domestic insurrection, to the military and civil authorities of the United States. It has of late been under the military control of the rebel forces, and at each time to the judgment of the commanders of the military forces holding it, it has been found necessary to preserve order and maintain quiet by an administration of martial law. Even during the interval from the evacuation by the rebel soldiers and the civil possession by the soldiers of the United States, the civil authorities have found it necessary to call for the interposition of an armed body known as the "European Legion," to preserve the public tranquillity. The commanding General, therefore, will assume the city to be governed, until the restoration of the United States authority and his further orders, by martial law. All persons in arms against the United States are required to surrender themselves with their arms, equipments and munitions of war. The body known as the "European Legion," not being understood to be in arms against the United States, but organized to protect the lives and property of the citizens, are invited to join cooperate with the forces of the United States to that end, and no action will not be included in the terms of this order, but will report to these headquarters. All assemblages, acts, devices tending to uphold any authority whatever, save the flags of the United States and those of foreign Consulates, must not be exhibited, but suppressed. The American ensign, the emblem of the United States, must be treated with the utmost deference and respect by all persons, under pain of severe punishment. All persons disposed towards the Government of the United States, who shall renew the oath of allegiance, will receive a safeguard of protection to their persons and property from the army of the United States, and the violation of such safeguard will be punishable with death. All persons still holding allegiance to the Confederate States will be deemed rebels against the Government of the United States and regarded and treated as enemies thereof. All foreigners not naturalized and claiming allegiance to their respective Governments, and not having made oath of allegiance to the Government of the Confederate States, will be protected in their persons and property as heretofore, under the laws of the United States. All persons who may heretofore have given adherence to the supposed Government of the Confederate States, or been in their service, who shall lay down or deliver up their arms, return to peaceful occupations, and preserve quiet and order, holding no further correspondence with nor giving aid and comfort to the enemies of the United States, will not be disturbed in their person or property, except so far under the orders of the Commanding General, as the exigencies of the public service may render necessary. Keepers of all public property, whether State, National or Confederate, such as collections of art, libraries and museums, as well as all public buildings, all munitions of war and armed vessels will at once make full returns thereof to these headquarters. All manufacturers of arms and munitions of war will report to these headquarters, their kind and places of business. All the rights of property, of whatever kind will be held inviolate, subject only to the laws of the United States. All the inhabitants are enjoined to pursue their usual avocations. All shops and places of amusement are to be kept open in the accustomed manner, and services are to be held in the churches and religious houses as in times of profound peace. Keepers of all public houses and drinking saloons are to report their names and numbers to the office of the Provost-Marshal, and they will there receive a license, and be held responsible for all disorders and disturbances arising in their respective places. Sufficient force will be kept in the city to preserve order and maintain the laws. The killing of American soldiers by any disorderly person or mob is simply assassination and murder, and not war, and will be so regarded and punished. The owner of any house in which such murder shall be committed will be held responsible therefor, and the house be liable to be destroyed by the military authority. All disorders, disturbances of the peace, and crimes of an aggravated nature, interfering with the forces or laws of the United States, will be referred to a Military Court for trial and punishment. Other misdemeanors will be subject to the municipal authority, if it desires to act. Civil causes between party and party will be referred to the ordinary tribunals. The levy and collection of taxes save those imposed by the laws of the United States, are suppressed, except those for keeping in repair and lighting the streets and for sanitary purposes. These are to be collected in the usual manner. The circulation of Confederate bonds, evidences of debt, (except notes in the similitude of bank notes, issued by the Confederate States,) or scrip or any trade in the same, is forbidden. It has been represented to the Commanding General by the civil authorities that these Confederate notes in the form of bank notes, in a great measure, are the only substitutes for money which the people have been allowed to have, and that great distress would ensue among the poorer classes if the circulation of such notes should be suppressed. Such circulation, therefore, will be permitted so long as any one will be inconsiderate enough to receive them, until further orders. No publication of newspapers, pamphlets or hand-bills giving accounts of the movements of the soldiers of the United States within this department, reflecting in any way upon the United States, or tending in any way to influence the public mind against the United States, will be permitted, and all articles on war news, editorial comments, or correspondence making comments upon the movements of the armies of the United States must be submitted to the examination of an officer who will be detailed for that purpose from these headquarters. The transmission of all communications by telegraph will be under the charge of an officer from these headquarters.

The armies of the United States come here, not to destroy but to restore order out of chaos; to uphold the Government and the laws in the place of the "passage" of men. To this end, therefore, the efforts of all the well-disposed are invited, to have every species of disorder quelled, and if any soldier of the United States should so far forget his duty to his flag as to commit outrage upon any person or property, the Commanding General requests his name to be instantly reported to the Provost Guard, so that he may be punished and his wrongful act redressed. The municipal authority, so far as the police of the city and crimes are concerned, to extend as before indicated, are hereby suspended. All assemblages of persons in the streets, either by day or night, tend to disorder and are forbidden. Various companies, composing the Fire Department of New-Orleans, will be permitted to retain their organizations, and are to report to the Provost Marshal so that they may be known and not interfered with in their duties.

And finally, it may be sufficient to add without further enumeration, that all the requirements of martial law will be imposed, so long as in the judgment of the United States authorities it may be necessary, and while it is desired by these authorities to exercise this government mildly and after the usages of the past, it must not be supposed that it will not be vigorously and firmly administered, as the occasion calls for it.

By command of Major-Gen. BUTLER.

GEO. B. STRONG, A. A. G., Chief of Staff.

THE CITY OF MEMPHIS.

Memphis is now the city round which centres all the movements of the Southwestern campaign. Foote's fleet (now commanded by Capt. Davis) is trying to force its way to it down the Mississippi River; another fleet is gradually advancing to it up the same stream, and HALLECK's great army threatens it from the West. It was mainly with a view to its defence, and therewith the defence of the Mississippi Valley, that BEAUREGARD took up his position at Corinth, and immense preparations have also been made for its defence in front and rear. It is now, next to Richmond, (of which we gave a diagram yesterday,) the rebel city of greatest interest, and until it is captured by our troops, public attention will be fixed upon it, and upon the operations on the great military lines leading to it. So well are the rebels satisfied of its speedy fall, that the military authorities have already begun to burn the cotton there stored, and to roll the sugar and molasses into the river. For a whole year, the city has been kept perpetually in the wildest state of excitement by the dread of capture and destruction; and the Memphian rebels must by this time be absolutely crazy. Its capture now cannot be delayed; for the discomfiture last Saturday of the rebel iron-clad gunboats and rams, upon which reliance was placed to keep our fleet from the city, shows that there is nothing now to prevent our bomb-ketches from anchoring in front of the city, and bringing it to terms as New-Orleans was brought to terms. We give this morning a diagram of the city which is the centre of so much importance and interest. Many interesting points will be found noted; among others the property of BEAUREGARD. The fact that he is a property holder here may account in part for his taking up his position as where did, and his anxiety to defend the city.

Memphis is by far the largest and most important city on the Mississippi River between St. Louis, which is 430 miles above, and New-Orleans, which is 730 miles below. It is situated immediately below the mouth of Wolf River, on the Fourth Chickasaw Bluff, which is elevated 50 feet above the highest floods. Its appearance from the river is remarkably striking. An esplanade, nearly a thousand feet wide, extends along the bluff in front of the town, and is bordered with extensive ranges of large warehouses; while, from the base of the bluff, a bed of sandstone projects into the river, forming a fine landing for steamers. This terrace, or esplanade, forms a glacis of sufficient compass to accommodate a large army facing the landing; and here, and at the most eligible sites about the city, heavy cannon have been mounted, while the exposed portions have been greatly strengthened by skillful engineers.

Memphis is the entrepôt of four railroads, traversing North, South, East and West. The lines running North are now practically in our hands; so also is the terminus of the line running South from Memphis to New-Orleans; we hold the Eastern line beyond Corinth, while the short strip running West into Arkansas is of no value whatever at the present juncture. The city can be approached from the Tennessee River by two lines of railroad, and some of the recent movements of Gen. HALLECK seem to indicate that he has an eye upon the Northern lines as well as upon the more direct one running East and West. These roads have added greatly to the commercial growth of Memphis, though it is the river traffic which has built the city. The shipments of cotton alone from the port, in the year ending September 1, 1860, amounted to four hundred thousand bales, and its general business, in ordinary times, is immense. It is the great point for cotton and other produce of Western Tennessee.

By last census the population of Memphis is put down at about 22,000 souls; but the city has been so long beleaguered and kept in a panic, and so many of its able-bodied citizens have been impressed into the rebel army, that it is calculated by refugees from there that it does not now number one-half of its ordinary inhabitants. Nearly all the stores are closed, and the proprietors of the few that are open, keep very few goods to sell, having secreted the greater part of their stock to prevent its being stolen. No one wants to sell anything, but endeavors to avoid selling, knowing that the shinplasters, which form the staple of the currency in retail circles, are worthless. There is no gold or silver in Memphis, and no notes even of the Bank of Tennessee; but in their stead the town is flooded with five, ten, twenty-five and fifty cent issues of the Tennessee and Mississippi Railway.

Great distress prevails among the people, and has prevailed for six months, in consequence of the severest poverty, and a great many laboring men and mechanics have been compelled to join the Southern army to obtain the common necessaries of life.

The Mississippi River, from Memphis to the Gulf, is deep enough to float even the largest ships of war. In view of this advantage the United States Government established a naval dépôt, or navy-yard here, which is situated on the south border of the city. There are buildings and adequate preparations for ship-building; and the construction of steamboats was formerly largely carried on in Memphis. For the last year, it has been used for iron-clothing and otherwise fitting up river steamers for offensive operations; and most of the boats which the rebels used in the naval fight last week, and in the defence of Island No. 10, were fitted up here. When Memphis falls, then good-by to "all intermediate landings," as the steamboat bills say.

AFFAIRS ON THE MISSISSIPPI AND IN TENNESSEE.

Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sunday, A. M., April 27, 1862.

Our latest news from Fort Pillow is by an arrival last night. The enemy have in the vicinity seven gun and three mortarboats, and did have on Saturday twenty-six transports filled with troops; but these were disappearing in the distance up the river, it is supposed for the purpose of throwing a body down the Tennessee and into Nashville, early destruction having taken place there which make their presence necessary. The distance of the gunboats from the fort is from three and a half to four miles, estimating the time between the flash of their guns and the bursting of their shells—say, about fifteen seconds. On Friday night they threw nine bombs after ten o'clock, but on Saturday there was no firing. Not the slightest effect from these missiles has yet been experienced. Of the position of our own gunboats, it is unwise to say anything, but you may rest assured they are in their proper places.

The opinion is gaining ground daily that the enemy will not attempt to run by Fort Pillow, as they did past our batteries at Island No. 10, until an attack has proved successful in the rear. This is likely to be prevented. The experience with our heavy guns during the long bombardment of twenty-eight days, demonstrates beyond a doubt that our land batteries, ably and boldly managed, are more than a match for their heaviest plated gunboats. Ball after ball was thrown into the latter at long range, and it is not likely that they will venture closer than they are actually compelled to do, for the purpose of breaching or silencing our guns. We have on Fort Pillow several weapons that have not as yet opened their mouths, and when they do, it will doubtless be to redouble the story of Fort Donelson, and the confusion of the swarms of hell-hounds which made their futile experiment to the end of its reduction. Even should the darkness of night favor a secret and sudden passage of one or two, it would be a foolhardy and unmilitary movement, which would leave an unconquered fortress in the rear. Transports could never get by, and one or half a dozen gunboats would be sure to fall a prey to their temerity.

I regret to say from the beginning there has been a feeling of jealousy between the regular navy, under Commodore Hollins, and the Mississippi flotilla. The latter utterly refuses to cooperate with the indomitable Mississippi Captain, and it is said has thrown obstacles in the way of important events, which could easily have been accomplished. Much prejudice exists in Memphis against Hollins, where the facts are fully known, and one hears nothing but vituperation when his name is spoken. I learn that he is now in Richmond, whither, as rumor says, he has been ordered to give reasons for his operations. I know nothing personally of the officer, and only chronicle these facts as a faithful and impartial observer of passing events.

We have also late, if not fresh, news from Nashville. Three gentlemen who have just arrived from there bring concurrent reports to the effect that the city is comparatively in a state of fortification. The Mayor, and many of the prominent citizens have been imprisoned, and Andy Johnson rules with an iron hand. Much excitement exists in anticipation of a threatened Confederate advance supposed to be on the tracks led by Gens. Kirby Smith and Humphrey Marshall. A few Federal troops only are said to be in Nashville, besides those sick and sick; and in view of the unprotected danger and inadequate means of defence, all the cotton was being removed, sutlers were selling out their stock at any price, and commissaries were giving away Government stores.

Affairs at Hagerville remain quiet, though the enemy were extending their line along the railroad at various points. It is variously estimated that they have captured from fifteen to twenty-five contrabands, which it is supposed they will run up to Nashville by way of Decatur. The passengers on the contraband train attired in civil garb were allowed to go free. Those in uniforms were detained. Among those were three express messengers, Messrs. Bell and Rogers, who wore the uniforms of their company connection. The mail agent escaped by leaping from the opposite side of the car and mingling with the passengers.

Affairs at Corinth are rapidly approaching a crisis. The Federal outposts have penetrated to within five miles of the place, and a battle is imminent. Before this reaches you the fate of arms may have wended through the winding beats, and the fate of one or both of the armies be determined. Memphis has left nothing undone, and we are in serious fighting order. The sick have been sent back, the various brigades assigned their positions, orders are flying "thick as leaves of Vallambrosa," and preparations are completed for giving a suitable reception to the foe.

Memphis is in a state of panic. Every loyal man, who can do so consistently with his personal interests, is leaving the city and taking with him his goods and chattels. The enemy are expected within four or five days. Everybody's money is useless, and being refused by stores. Many merchants have closed their stores rather than accept it in exchange for their goods. The Tennessee money contains a promise of from fifteen to twenty per cent. Gold has advanced two and a half per cent. This state of affairs is of course owing to the fact that, by reason of the Federal orders, Southern funds will be comparatively valueless, while State bills will pass here, as at Nashville, with the same facility as United States Treasury Notes.

DEPARTMENT OF THE RAPPAHANNOCK.

Capture of Two Rebel Schooners in the Piankatank River.

Five Hundred Deserters from the Rebel Army.

SPECIAL DISPATCH FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 13.

The steamer Wyandank arrived at the Navy yard this morning, about 9 o'clock, from the mouth of the Rappahannock. Her officers report that on Sunday the gunboats President and Island Belle cut out of Piankatank River, which enters Chesapeake Bay miles below the mouth of the Rappahannock, two large-sized rebel schooners, one unloaded, the other having a heavy assorted cargo, but mostly whisky.

After the schooners were taken, Capt. HARRIS, of the Belle, proceeded some miles up the Piankatank River, and found on the banks a band of rebel deserters, nearly five hundred in number, with arms in their hands. They stated that they had been stationed on York River, near Gloucester Point, and when the order came to evacuate, they determined to desert, which they did, in a body. They were advancing in the direction of the National lines with a view to surrender themselves, being heartily "sick of secesh service." They belonged to a Virginia regiment. They offered to lay down their arms and surrender to Capt. HARRIS, but he had no means of bringing them away, so he merely offered to administer the oath of allegiance to them, which they immediately and readily took. Capt. HARRIS left them their arms to defend themselves with.

This desertion of five hundred rebels in a body, is regarded here as one of the most significant events of the day.

THE MOUNTAIN DEPARTMENT.

Arrival of Gen. Fremont with His Main Army at Franklin.

THE REBEL FORCES RETREATING.

SPECIAL DISPATCH FROM FRANKLIN.

FRANKLIN, VIA GREEN SPRING AND BALTIMORE, Tuesday, May 13.

Gen. FREMONT arrived here early to-day at the head of his army, having come, by forced marches, to the relief of SCHENCK and MILROY. He immediately reviewed the regiments here stationed, and rode out a little beyond town.

The enemy decamped last night and are now retreating.

In the late battle at McDowell, our loss was 70 killed, and about 200 wounded—many but slightly.

The troops are all in high spirits, and full of expectation.

DEPARTMENT OF THE SHENANDOAH.

Rumored Capture of the Famous Col. Ashby.

STRASBURG, Va., Tuesday, May 13.

A rumor is in circulation through the army that Col. ASHBY was captured by Gen. HATCH, of the cavalry, yesterday, but it is discredited in official quarters.

The cars on the Manassas Railroad reached the bridge on the north fork of the Shenandoah this morning, for the first time. A large number of hands are engaged rebuilding the bridge over that stream, which, when completed, will make rail connection to this point.

More Designs upon the Blockade.

ARRIVAL OF BRITISH AND REBEL SHIPS AT NASSAU—ARMS, SALT AND SALTPETRE FOR THE CONFEDERATES.

By the British brig Alma, Capt. BOODIE, from Nassau, N. P., we learn that the Confederate steamship Orita, from Southampton, had just arrived with a cargo of arms for the rebels.

The British steamer Stella, from Southampton, with arms and saltpetre, was waiting an opportunity to run the blockade; also, the British steamship Minnie, from Southampton, with a cargo of salt, bound for the same destination, was in port.

CAIRO, Tuesday, May 13.

To Hon. Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy:

News from the fleet is just received. The Mound City was injured on the starboard bow by a ram, and is on her way to Cairo for repairs. The Cincinnati was injured off starboard bow, and sunk in twelve feet of water. She will be raised and sent here for repairs, which will be done with all possible dispatch. Com. STEMBEL is here at the naval dépôt doing well. Fourth Master REYNOLDS, of the Cincinnati, is mortally wounded. Two of the Cincinnati's crew were slightly wounded. There were no other casualties. Com. STEMBEL fought his ship splendidly.

Commanding and Fleet Captain.

OPERATIONS AGAINST RICHMOND.

Dispatch from Gen. McClellan to the War Department.

Movements of Our Gunboats on the James River.

REBEL BATTERIES SILENCED.

The Rebel Steamers Yorktown and Jamestown Decline a Contest.

The Monitor and the Naugatuck Come up Toward Richmond.

Obstructions Twelve Miles Below the City.

DISPATCH FROM GEN. MCCLELLAN.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, CAMP AT ROCKY COVERT, May 13, 1862.

Hon. Edwin M. Stanton:

Commander ROGERS writes me to-day, that he went with the gunboats yesterday past Light House. Everything quiet and no signs of troops along the river. He found two batteries, of five or twelve guns each, on the south side of James River, one opposite the mouth of the Warwick, the other about southwest from Mulberry Point. The upper battery on Harrison or Mulberry Lines's Bluff, has heavy rifled pieces; between the batteries lay the Jamestown and Yorktown. Commander ROGERS offered battle, but the gunboats retired. He silenced one battery and ran past the other.

Major-General Commanding.

LATEST NEWS FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

FORTRESS MONROE, Tuesday, May 13.

A flag of truce went up the James River yesterday morning, and returned at six o'clock this morning. Three hundred and five prisoners of war were sent up, to be released on parole, but eighty-five of them refused to give parole, and will be sent to Washington. The flag of truce brought back eight hundred and eighty-five rank and file. Twelve prisoners, a large number of whom were taken at Williamsburgh. They were generally taken, however, at Bell Run, and have been waiting their release in Richmond for some months. Those captured on board the Congress and the line of battle steamers are still here, and will be sent North immediately. Muster rolls have already been sent to Washington.

No officers were among our released prisoners.

FORTRESS MONROE, Tuesday, May 13.

Eight hundred and eighty-five prisoners, released from Richmond on parole, leave to-day on the steamer Wm. Keen.

Ninety rebel prisoners, who were to be returned to Richmond, positively refused, (although earnestly urged and threatened by their officers,) and took the oath of allegiance.

OUR EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Events Following the Battle—How the Wounded Were Disposed of—The Rebel Wounded Left on the Field—Brutality of Rebel Surgeons—Williamsburgh and Its Inhabitants, &c.

[The following letters, having been intercepted in the mail, were, as a matter of course, greatly delayed in reaching the TIMES Office. They are published, not as containing news, but as complete and connected personal narrative of events on the Peninsula.]

YORKTOWN, Thursday Night.

My last letter closed with an account of my ride eight miles in advance of Williamsburgh—the farthest point which our troops had then reached in their pursuit of the retreating rebels. It soon became evident that the only object of the enemy in opening fire upon our cavalry, was to create a temporary pause in their progress, and thus gain time for their rear. The maneuver was entirely successful, for it caused first, a delay of the cavalry until the infantry could come up,—then a delay of the whole force until the cavalry could be supported by reinforcements of the enemy, and finally the withdrawal of the whole force for the night. The attention of each branch of the service was specially directed to the important subject of supplies, which was of no little embarrassment, as not one of the transportation trains had been able to reach the front. The infantry directed their attention mainly to the pastry of the country, the cavalry scoured the country for miles round, and which soon began to arrive in very considerable droves,—and the artillery contented themselves with observation. The whole force was soon in comfortable shape as could be expected, and in this condition we left them.

Meantime, during nearly the whole time we had heard in advance and on our right, heavy and rapid discharges of artillery, and had seen columns of dark brown smoke rising into the sky, which showed plainly enough the presence of steamboats in those upper waters of the York River. We were at once that FRANKLIN was landing his force under the protection of the gunboats, but of the details we could of course know nothing. On returning to Yorktown this afternoon, we learned that his landing was not stated, and that, although offered, it was not given without loss on his part. No details, however, have been received up to the present time.

After the engagement of Monday, the great bulk of the wounded on the National side were taken to hospitals in the rear, from which they have since been removed to Yorktown, Old Point, and many of them to Baltimore. The wounded rebels were also

ADDITIONAL SICK AND WOUNDED.

NAMES OF INVALIDS BROUGHT NORTHWARD BY THE SURGEON OF THE THIRD NEW-YORK.

The following wounded and sick soldiers were removed from Baltimore northward to their homes by the Surgeon of the Third New-York Volunteers. A large number were left on the road at places where they belonged, while 247 were brought directly to New-York. The list is imperfect, in so far that a number who expected to leave with the escort were too ill to do so, while others took their places.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

The President has issued a proclamation declaring that the blockade of the ports of Beaufort, Port Royal and New-Orleans shall so far cease and determine from and after the 1st of June next, that commercial intercourse with those ports, except as to persons and things and information contraband of war, may from that time be carried on, subject to the laws of the United States, and to the limitations and in pursuance of the regulations which are prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury. In accordance with this proclamation, Secretary CHASE has issued a circular specifying the rules by which the trade with those reopened ports must be regulated. The proclamation and the circular will be found in our columns this morning.

Our latest advices from Gen. McCLELLAN are to Monday. He telegraphs to the War Department from Commander Rodgers, on board the Galena, that gunboats were dispatched up the river. He found batteries of ten guns each on the South side of the river, with the rebel steamers Yorktown and Jamestown. Commander Rodgers offered battle to the rebel vessels, but they declined it and moved off. Our gunboats then silenced one of the batteries, and ran by the other. The river was clear, and no troops were crossing. We learn from Fortress Monroe that the Monitor and Naugatuck have also gone up toward Richmond.

Our latest advices from Norfolk represent everything quiet there. Most of the stores were closed, and the prices of almost everything were astonishingly high, but it was expected that these things would change in a few days, under the operations of Yankee enterprise. Confederate notes were already refused in many places, and gold and silver were welcomed with enthusiasm by all classes of the people, many of whom had seen none for many months. The Norfolk Day Book was to be continued as an afternoon paper, under proper restrictions. Great quantities of tobacco appear to have been destroyed in the vicinity of Norfolk, as the Elizabeth River, between that city and Portsmouth, was colored by what had been thrown into it.

Our Special Correspondent in the Mountain Department telegraphs from Franklin, in Pendleton County, that Gen. FREMONT, at the head of his main army, arrived there yesterday, having gone by forced marches to the relief of SCHENCK and MILROY, threatened by the combined rebel forces of JACKSON and EDWARD JOHNSON. The enemy, however, had decamped from the neighborhood on Monday night. Our losses in the affair at McDowell are put down at 20 killed and about 200 wounded. Gen. FREMONT, it will be seen by reference to a map of Virginia, is now only a few miles from Gen. BANKS' headquarters at New-Market.

We have important Southern news by way of the Mississippi River and through other channels. From New-Orleans we learn that Mayor MONROE and all the Aldermen, having refused to take the oath of allegiance, were sent to prison. Gen. BUTLER had full possession of the city, and had established his headquarters at the St. Charles Hotel. Several regiments had been landed, and the National pickets had been extended as far as the crossing of the Jefferson and Jackson Railroads. The publication of all the newspapers still proceeded, but a censor was established in each office to exclude whatever matter might be thought improper. Gen. BUTLER had sent a proclamation to all the offices for publication, but the proprietors refused to publish it, whereupon a guard was sent to take possession of the True Delta office, the proclamation was put in type by printers from Gen. BUTLER's army, and it was published in the issue of the 2d inst. The document will be found in full in this morning's TIMES. The Memphis papers seem to regard the fall of Richmond as a foregone conclusion.

We learn by an arrival at Washington from the Rappahannock, that the gunboat Island Belle on Saturday passed up the Piankatank River some distance, and discovered a body of about 500 rebel deserters from the Gloucester Point batteries, who stated that when the order was given to evacuate, they, being disgusted with the service, determined to march to the National lines and surrender. They belonged to a Virginia regiment. They offered to lay down their arms, and expressed a willingness to take the oath of allegiance, which Capt. HAMMAS, of the Belle, administered to all of them.

Released National prisoners, who left Memphis on May 5, bring a report in circulation there that the fleet from New-Orleans had reached Vicksburgh.

The St. Louis Republican, of May 10, says: "Gen. CURTIS' advance reached Batesville on the 3d inst., having from Forsyth pursued a tortuous course, over difficult roads, through Taney, Douglas and Ozark counties, in this State, and Fulton, Izard and Independence counties, Arkansas. His route lay along the Big North Fork of the White River, across a hilly country, drained by numerous streams tributary to White River, and the march was accordingly tedious and slow. Batesville is a thriving and handsome town of about two thousand inhabitants, on the White River, about fifty miles on an air line below the southern boundary of Missouri. Small steamers reach this point at nearly all seasons. The columns of Gen. CURTIS and Gen. SIGEL have probably joined at Jacksonport, at the mouth of Black River, thirty-five miles below Batesville. Gen. SIGEL'S command, composed of three brigades, commanded by Col. CARLIN, Col. HOVEY and Col. CONRAD BAKER, which is the expedition from Pilot Knob, is reported to have reached Jacksonport on the 2d inst. The united force, there can be no harm in stating, is in the neighborhood of fifteen thousand men. Manifestly Gen. CURTIS' object is to form a junction with Gen. HALLECK's forces, or, to cooperate with them by drawing off a portion of BEAUREGARD's army by threatening Memphis."

A dispatch dated Headquarters Department Mississippi, May, 3, says: "The Union sentiment in Batesville, Arkansas, is considerable, and in the surrounding country strong. The people seem pleased by the arrival of their ancient, time honored flag. Lieut.-Col. DOUGLAS MCBRIDE, chief of Gen. McPHERSON's staff, and Aid-de-Camp of Gen. Sigel, at the battle of Pea Ridge, was killed by guerrillas on the 2d or 4th inst."

It is authoritatively announced in Richmond that the evacuation of Yorktown was made necessary by the fact that the rebel Capital has been completely invested by Gen. McCLELLAN. This place is on the extreme southern border of Virginia, about midway from east to west. The railroad from Richmond to Danville runs in a southwest direction, and is 142 miles long. The stage route from Danville to Greensboro, to the southwest, is 54 miles, and the railroad under construction will scarcely be less. The distance from Fort Macon to Greensboro is 216 miles, in a northwesterly direction—180 from Newbern.

The following extract, from a private letter from Gen. WM. B. FRANKLIN, gives a true and unexaggerated account of the fight at West Point, Va. It is dated Wednesday, May 7: "Yesterday I left Yorktown, and arriving here about two, began to land about four. The enemy was seen in the vicinity, but did not interfere with us till after dark. Then they killed one of our pickets. The night passed off quietly, however, and nothing occurred till about seven this morning, when skirmishing began on our front, which became gradually severer, and finally very sharp. Gen. NEWTON'S Brigade was engaged more than any other, and some of his regiments suffered severely. The Thirty-first and Thirty-second New-York were in the action, and several officers of both regiments were killed. The Sixteenth New-York lost about fifteen killed and wounded, and our whole loss was about one hundred, perhaps more. The fight was all the time in the thick woods. Firing ceased about three o'clock. We have had a success, thank God, for they attacked us and were driven back. I have had no sleep for two nights, and am as fresh as if nothing had happened. I hope, however, to have plenty of sleep to-night."

Gen. JAS. G. BLUNT succeeds to the command of Gen. STURGIS in the District of Kansas, which is now cut off from the territory lately embraced in Gen. HALLECK'S Department of the Mississippi. One of the first orders under the new régime directs the immediate organization and equipment of two Indian regiments.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate yesterday the Pacific Railroad bill was reported back from the Special Committee by Mr. MCDOUGALL, who moved to make it the special order for Thursday next. The motion failed. The bill to protect the Indians who have adopted civilized habits was passed. A joint resolution to provide for the presentation of medals of honor to enlisted men and volunteers was reported from the Military Committee, and passed. Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, also offered a resolution authorizing regiments to inscribe the names of battles on their flags, and gave notice that he would call it up at an early day. The bill for the better protection of the revenue was passed. It confers upon the President and Secretary of the Treasury certain powers in regard to clearances and transportation. The Indian Appropriation bill was then considered until the adjournment.

In the House, the Senate's amendments to the bill to establish a Bureau of Agriculture, was concurred in, and the bill stands passed. The Pension bill was again considered, and, after considerable discussion, was passed. An outline of its provisions will be found in our report of the proceedings. The bill to facilitate the transportation of troops and mails between Washington and New-York, was reported back from the Committee on Roads and Canals. After some debate it was laid on the table—76 to 43. After some further business of no special importance the House adjourned.

GENERAL NEWS.

By the arrival off Farther Point of the steamship Jura, on her way to Quebec, we have advices from Europe to the 2d of May—one day later. It is again asserted by the Paris correspondent of the Indépendance Belge that France and England intend to interfere in the affairs of the United States. The foundation for the statement is not given. One of the terms of intervention is stated to be a requirement that the South shall guarantee the emancipation of the slaves. The Great Exhibition was opened on the 1st inst., and the affair is represented to have been a decided success. The Liverpool Cotton market was dull and lower. Breadstuffs were also dull, and Provisions heavy. Consols were 93¾@93⅞.

A number of wounded soldiers arrived in this City yesterday from Yorktown, viâ Baltimore and Jersey City. On arriving they were at once taken in charge by Cols. HOWE, BLISS and ALMY, and conveyed to the Park Barracks, and the New-England Hospital, No. 194 Broadway. Later in the day the hospital ship Daniel Webster arrived here from Fortress Monroe, with 247 sick and wounded soldiers; the majority of whom are suffering from typhoid and other fevers. Fifty, badly wounded, were at once conveyed to the hospital; the others will remain on board, properly cared for, till this morning.

Lieut. WORDEN, of the Monitor, was a visitor at the Stock and Exchange Board yesterday morning. He was introduced by W. R. VERMILYE, Esq., the late President, and received with three rounds of hearty cheering, in return to which the Lieutenant made quite a neat little speech.

The British ship Alliance, of Liverpool, Eng., in charge of Acting Master WELCH, formerly of the schooner Mary Alice, arrived in port yesterday morning. She was captured at the taking of Fort Macon by Gen. BURNSIDE's Expedition. She has a full cargo of spirits turpentine, and was lying near the fort waiting an opportunity to run the blockade for the Liverpool market.

Lieut. STONE, prize master of the ship Emilie St. Pierre, which was recaptured by her crew and taken to Liverpool, publishes a card in the Philadelphia Ledger, detailing the circumstances of the singular affair. His story does not differ materially from that already published. He states that he and his mate were kept in close confinement for thirty-one days before reaching Liverpool.

A letter was received in Wheeling, on Sunday, from Capt. B. W. STEPHENS, of the First Virginia Regiment, now with Gen. SHIELDS' division, at Columbia Bridge, Page County, detailing a reconnoissance made by that regiment a few days since. The First Virginia, with two companies of cavalry, were sent out on a reconnoissance, and when they had proceeded some eight miles, discovered that the enemy was in their rear. Col. THOBURN, upon discovering his precarious situation, ordered the command to fall back. The order was executed in a masterly manner, and the regiment got out of the scrape with the loss of a single man, RANDOLPH BASSFORD, of Marshall county, of Capt. MCDONALD'S Company. It appears that the reconnoitering party were in the power of the enemy, but the advantage was not discovered.

Over nine thousand shells were thrown by the fleet in the bombardment of the forts below New-Orleans. Most of them were 13-inch shells, which cost, with their filling, nearly $20 each.

In a letter to Dr. RUD. DOBBS, dated Washington, April 19, Col. F. P. BLAIR takes strong grounds in favor of gradual emancipation and compensation to the owners of slaves.

Mr. ARTHUR F. DEXTER, of Providence, R. I., has received an appointment on the staff of Brig.-Gen. TYLER, and has left for Pittsburgh Landing.

The gunboat Mahaska made a highly successful trial trip from the Portsmouth (N. H.) Navy-yard on Friday last.

Judge ADDISON T. KNOX, who was elected to the Bench of the Supreme Court of this State for the Rochester District in 1859, died at Waterloo early on Monday morning.

Two sisters, daughters of Mr. D. WARD, fisherman, were drowned in the bay, at Toronto, on Sunday last, in consequence of the capsizing of a sail-boat in which they were.

It is stated that a Committee appointed by the New-York Law Institute, to investigate the charges made against EDWIN JAMES, Esq., while a member of the English Bar, have submitted their report at General Term of the Supreme Court. The nature of the report, however, is not yet known.

The speculative excitement in the Stock market continued yesterday, with the turn of prices against the market, the advance of Monday being lost before the close of the dealings. United States 6's were sold, 104½; Central, 93½; Gold fell to 102¼@¾; Exchange closed 114¼@114⅞ cash.

Flour was freely offered and purchased yesterday, at, however, a further reduction in prices. Wheat and Corn were in fair demand, and the latter was quoted higher. Provisions were rather sparingly dealt in. Pork was cheaper. Teas and Fire Crackers were more active. Sugars were in request, as were also Hay, Hops, Cotton, Tallow, and Whisky. Coffee, Molasses, Rice, Seeds, Tobacco, Metals, Oils and Naval Stores, were generally quiet. The freight engagements were more extensive and at very full rates. Other branches of trade exhibited no remarkable alteration.

The cattle trade was lively on Monday, but dull yesterday. Nearly 4,400 beeves were on sale at ALLERTON'S, which was more than enough for butchers and the few graziers present. Prices declined ¼c.@½c. ℔ ℔., the best cattle—and there were many good ones—selling at 8¼c., and prime, fat steers at 8c. A few hundred were left over for to-day's sale.

The Last Ditch.

We continue to receive assurances that the rebel army intends to make a final stand,—a desperate, determined effort at resistance in front of Richmond. Advices from Norfolk assert that this is the universal opinion there. Of course it is. This is the pretext on which Gen. HUGER justified to the citizens of that place his abandonment of them. He told them that great strategical reasons demanded his evacuation of Norfolk,—that his army was needed at Richmond,—and that there they intend to fight to the last man. The same story induced the evacuation of Yorktown. Indeed, it is precisely what the rebel officers have said at every point. They have found it necessary to say it in order to keep up the confidence of their men. If it had been generally supposed that their withdrawal from these strong points was merely a retreat and nothing more, the rebel army could not have been held together an hour.

We do not believe these predictions of a great battle at Richmond. The day for such a battle has gone by. If they intended to fight with any such desperation as they talk about, they would have done it when they were in position to do it with effect. Armies do not surrender three chances of success, in order to try the fourth first. They might have been driven out of Yorktown, but not without crippling our power to pursue them. They might have been beaten at Norfolk, but not without a long and severe contest. They might have been forced from Williamsburgh, even if they had concentrated their whole force there, instead of imperfectly holding that strong position with their rear guard. And they would have contested each of these places before falling back upon Richmond, if they had intended to contest the possession of that city with a tithe of their pretended desperation. Any one of the three places named would have been really stronger and more capable of defence than Richmond. It is preposterous to suppose that they would have abandoned them without a fight, for the sake of fighting at a disadvantage at a weaker point.

Undoubtedly they are making preparations to defend Richmond. If McCLELLAN reaches them before they have accumulated any considerable force there and put it in proper fighting condition, he can easily drive them out. If they really succeed in presenting a formidable front, he will quietly encamp before the city, bring up his reserves, await the arrival of McDOWELL from the North and of BANKS from the Northwest, and in due time satisfy their Generals, by a simple distant inspection of his preparations, that a fight will be a mere useless and a very expensive formality. And this exhibition will probably have the same effect upon them at Richmond which it had at Yorktown. They are sensible men, after all. They do not fight without an object. They never contest desperately the possession of a place which is not worth holding, or which they are unable to hold. They left Yorktown for the simple reason that McCLELLAN'S preparations were too much for them. They knew perfectly well that they could not hold it. He could have covered every square yard of their works, inside and out, with shells from his batteries; and when the proper moment came he could have taken 30,000 men, under protection of his trenches, within ten minutes' march of their works and hurled them upon them with a perfectly irresistible force. They knew this, and therefore they left. In due time they will leave Richmond under a similar conviction. With the gunboats on one side, Gen. McCLELLAN and 100,000 thoroughly disciplined and eager troops on another, McDOWELL with 35,000, and BANKS with as many more on the other two, the rebel leaders will consult that discretion which has always been the most conspicuous, and certainly the most serviceable part of their valor.

The destruction of the Merrimac is conclusive to our minds that Richmond is not to be defended. In Norfolk, on Sunday, the people insisted that the Merrimac was not destroyed, because it was determined to use her to prevent the passage of more gunboats up James River, to coöperate in the attack on Richmond. But she is destroyed,—and the Monitor, Naugatuck and other war vessels are permitted to go to Richmond without obstruction. This would not be so if Richmond was to be defended.

A few days will solve it all. In our judgment, there are to be no more great battles in Virginia,—probably none anywhere. The rebellion is over. The rebel leaders will now attempt to make terms. Foreign Powers, convinced of their utter inability to maintain a de facto independence, will insist upon their submission, and will doubtless use their influence to secure for them the most favorable terms possible. By the 4th of July we shall probably see the end of the insurrection.

THE REBELS NEAR THE RAPPAHANNOCK.—The rebels are not disposed to abandon Virginia without elaborate movements to cover their retreat. Not only is there concurrent testimony of a strong force holding the country south of Fredericksburg, but in the Valley MILROY and SCHENCK have been encountered by a greatly augmented column under JACKSON. Yorktown and Norfolk were relinquished partly because of their exposure to the gunboats, and partly because their peninsular location subjected the garrisons to constant danger of being outflanked and surrounded by our army in superior force. In the interior these incidents of the contest cease to exist. The rebel army rests on its original base. As the latest accounts it still retained intact its communications with the South and Southwest, though both may by this time be in possession of our forces. All is not lost while these conditions remain. They may still, in retiring, maintain their coherence and organization as an army, but this is all there is left to them in Virginia.

In the meantime the position of their forces between the Rappahannock and Chickahominy, is extremely hazardous. McDOWELL holds the river in front, while in the rear, no further from McDOWELL'S advance than fifty miles, the heavy column of McCLELLAN is prepared to cut off their retreat. If to this category of unfavorable surroundings could be added the advance of Gen. BANKS from the Valley, where, in the absence of supplies, his troops have nothing to do but celebrate the victories of other armies, (howbeit, a daily task,) it would be clearly impossible for the rebel army of the Rappahannock to effect an escape. Any moment may complete the cordon, and compel the surrender of this particular force. There will then be no obstacle to the junction of McDOWELL and BANKS with McCLELLAN.

Superseding the Blockade—New-Orleans, Beaufort, and Port Royal to be Opened.

The President's proclamation declaring the supersession of the blockade at certain Southern ports, of which we took notice when first officially received, is now published. It abolishes, from the first of June next, the blockade at the ports of Beaufort, N. C., Port Royal, S. C., (a port opened by Northern enterprise, and likely to supplant Charleston, as it well deserves to,) and New-Orleans, and throws them open to the commerce of the world, subject to the laws of the United States, and to the limitations and regulations prescribed by the Treasury Department. These limitations and regulations, both as regards foreign vessels and coastwise traders, are expressly stated in a circular issued by Secretary CHASE.

Notably enough, the announcement of this important measure is coincident with the arrival of reiterated and emphasized rumors of a projected intervention by France and England in American affairs. If, as we may well assume, the utmost scope of this project, magnified by the name of "intervention," is the desire to obtain a supply of cotton and tobacco, the raising of the blockade at the points named, will forestall any movement on their part. Intervention in any other sense than as an appeal, no European nation or coalition of nations, would be mad enough, in the present aspect of affairs, to undertake. And we shall doubtless hear no more of it when it is understood that the Government of the United States has hastened to take the earliest opportunity to relax that belligerent right of blockade which has pressed so heavily on the commerce and industries of foreign nations, and has already thrown open three Southern ports to the trade of the world.

Having thrown open the ports, the Government can do no more, and it will, of course, depend on the temper of the people whether or no commercial relations are resumed. Will cargoes of cotton be obtainable at New-Orleans and Port Royal when the blockade is raised, or will the rebels either burn or refuse to sell? It is needless to enter into elaborate speculation on a question that must soon be settled by the event; but we may briefly state that we have very little fear that they will either burn or refuse to sell. Thus far all the cotton-burning that has been done, has been the work of Confederate soldiery, appointed for the express purpose—the Richmond usurpers having found it impossible to trust to the "patriotism" of the planters to apply the torch to their property. On the other hand, the anticipation that the planters will steadily refuse to sell is sufficiently contradicted by the fact that they have invariably seized every opportunity to run the blockade with cargoes of cotton; and this in face of the known embargo laid by the Confederate authorites on the great staple, with which they hoped to coerce European Powers into recognition.

We may safely trust this whole matter to the operation of the ordinary laws that govern human nature in its material interest—laws which, while claiming a lordly exemption, Southern human nature, as late experience has taught us, is rather more than ordinarily subject to. Cotton must move to the seaboard when there are there gold and silver and articles of merchandise to exchange for it. The South is literally bare of everything that a people more or less civilized requires. There is a plentiful lack of everything, whether of the utile or the dulce—whether for wear, for work, for food, or for medicine. And when the cargoes arrive from Yankeeland, there will doubtless be such a rush for the good things as will throw a New-York "opening-day" completely into the shade. Active preparations are, we understand, already being made in this City for the resumption of trade with New-Orleans and the two other ports. Those who propose to embark in this enterprise will find the conditions in which they may obtain licenses in the circular issued by Secretary CHASE and published in another column.

NEW-ORLEANS UNDER MARTIAL LAW.—Gen. BUTLER easily overcame the material defences of New-Orleans. He has now the more difficult task before him of overcoming the effects of defeat, wounded pride and mortification; in other words, of bringing the population, not merely into subjection to National authority, but into cheerful and willing subjection. Of the temper appropriate to this result, he appears to find little. The popular chagrin and disappointment are too acute to be readily cured. The citizens of New-Orleans had been confident of the practical inaccessibility of the place. What with forts and chains above, below and around the city; floating batteries, and gunboats without stint; and the presence of an army twice or thrice the strength of that which was approaching the town with hostile aim, they had every reason, they thought, to laugh at the Yankees, and await patiently the annihilation of their leagues. The fates decreed otherwise; and prompt submission to the fiats of destiny is not classed among Southern virtues. New-Orleans, captured, is sour, indignant, insubordinate. The Mayor and the Councils decline to take the oath of allegiance to National authority, which saves them the commission of perjury, while it consigns them to the cool, though moist, seclusion of the calaboose. And thus does Gen. BUTLER inaugurate his second campaign, which is directed against the moral rather than the martial recusancy of the rebels.

The competency of Gen. BUTLER for the position in which he finds himself cannot be questioned. Beyond suspicion of Abolition or strong Anti-Slavery proclivities; famous for patience and good humor; he is not the less noted for steady resolution and firmness of purpose, before which resistance must give way. His proclamation to the people is a fair index of his mind and intent. He will tolerate no treason, connive at no disparaging or seditious allusions to the National Government. Where opposition, active or passive, is offered, it will be decisively crushed out. Observance of law, order and social decorum, where neglected, he will compel. The programme is sound and judicious. He has the will and the power to enforce it; and steadily enforced, and aided by the prestige of continuous victories on the part of the Union, it will not be long before New-Orleans returns to its allegiance, and so to restored civil government and renewed commercial prosperity.

The Prospect at Corinth.

There must presently be either a great battle or a grand retreat in the Southwest. The immense army of Gen. HALLECK—the largest column under any one commander in the field—is so close upon the rebel works and army, and his movements are now so menacing and dangerous, that it will be impossible for BEAUREGARD to remain inactive in his present position for many days longer. The daily reports of skirmishes which reach us, are indicative of the steady advance of curlines; of the constant occupation of new points of value, and of the progress of a system of strategy similar to that which has been so destructive to the rebel army in Virginia—namely, rendering the rebel situation untenable, and making success morally certain before the assault is begun. The heavy skirmish which was reported in our yesterday's issue, as having taken place three miles from Corinth, when the enemy found it necessary to move against our advance with a force twenty thousand strong, indicates the perilous proximity to our troops of the right wing of the enemy's main body. If he means to maintain his present position for any length of time, or to keep open his western line of communication, or his southward line of retreat, it is essential to him that our troops be prevented from advancing another inch in any direction. But while it is necessary for him to do all he can to accomplish this, it is quite impossible for him to succeed in it; for the troops of Gen. HALLECK are now so disposed that he can completely outflank him whenever it shall be found advisable to do so.

We do not believe that the rebels will be able to effect any such series of retreats on their Southwestern line as they have been able to effect in Virginia. It is not likely that Gen. HALLECK will allow them to retreat from Corinth at all. Whenever there is any evidence that such a course of policy is to be adopted, the various columns of the National army, now upon three sides of the rebel army, will close in upon it, and compel a battle or a surrender. The field of operations here is not at all analogous to that in Virginia. In Virginia the enemy was on the outside of his defensive line; in Mississippi he is at its extremity.

Rumors have come thick and fast of late that BEAUREGARD had abandoned Corinth; and a fortnight ago a very dubious dispatch was telegraphed to Memphis from his headquarters that the evacuation was then going on, and was nearly completed. But the dispatches yesterday made it quite certain that he is still there in force, and that, instead of abandoning his works, he has an army of negroes engaged in strengthening them. All the outlying detachments from every quarter have arrived, from the far West, the far South, and from all the region round about. Everything in the shape of a man that can be raised in the Cotton States, has been sent to Corinth, to take part in the last great struggle for the ownership of the Mississippi Valley and the existence of the Confederacy. It would be no use now for BEAUREGARD to retire to a position closer to Memphis; for it is evident that Memphis itself cannot hold out for any length of time. And if it be correct that our navy is in front of Mobile, it would be quite useless for him to attempt a retreat Southward.

Events in Virginia hasten events in the Southwest. Gen. HALLECK'S movements hasten events in his front. The fearful condition of the rebel army itself will compel a speedy and quick solution of a problem which to it is one of destruction or surrender. Probably Gen. McCLELLAN will not reach Richmond before the only formidable rebel force in the field, out of Virginia, shall be scattered to the four winds of heaven.

COMMODORE PORTER AND THE COAST SURVEY.—We would call attention to the testimony which, in another column, Capt. PORTER bears to the important services rendered him by the Coast Survey. At every stage of his progress he was indebted to the personal and professional counsels of the officer detached by Superintendent BACHE to accompany him. Channels were retraced, soundings verified, secure anchorage and advantageous positions pointed out; in a word, a volume of information and assistance furnished, the want of which must have seriously retarded, if not defeated, the operations of the flotilla. The aid rendered this single expedition were cheaply bought with the entire yearly appropriation for the Survey.

BROWNLOW IN NEW-YORK.—The reception accorded yesterday to Parson BROWNLOW, he will have the goodness to consider a very imperfect expression of the feeling heartily entertained toward him by our people. We have learned here to regard him as the true type of what the Southerner ought to be, and of what in tale and tradition he is represented to be. Daring, self-reliant, earnest, truthful, gentle, in the right cause eloquent, and against the wrong unsparing; patient and unconquerable in persecution and adversity; the soul of honor, with the heart of a woman—these are the elements of genuine chivalry, and all these are the possession of BROWNLOW. A loyalty like his, which has braved death, have shall we measure with the standard of Governor DAVIS, or POWELL, or GARNSBURG; BROWNLOW sets his country and the Union above all else—even above Slavery. Loyalists of the Kentucky school hedge their fidelity about with infinite conditions, and the reservation of numberless selfish interests, exalted higher than the Union and the Constitution; talking of State rights in language borrowed from the lips of Rebellion. By as much as we despise and reject these men, do we honor the Tennessee hero, who is so worthily the guest of our people. All honor to Parson BROWNLOW!

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

An Important Proclamation by President Lincoln.

Beaufort, N. C., Port Royal, S. C., and New-Orleans to be Thrown Open to Commerce.

The Trade Regulations Established by Secretary Chase.

Proposition to Send Food to New-Orleans.

PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT.

Whereas, by my Proclamation of the nineteenth of April, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, it was declared that the ports of certain States, including those of Beaufort, in the State of North Carolina; Port Royal, in the State of South Carolina, and New-Orleans, in the State of Louisiana, were, for reasons therein set forth, intended to be placed under blockade; and, whereas, the said ports of Beaufort, Port Royal and New-Orleans have since been blockaded; but as the blockade of the same ports may now be safely relaxed with advantage to the interests of commerce:

Now, therefore, be it known that I, ABRAHAM LINCOLN, President of the United States, pursuant to the authority in me vested by the fifth section of the act of Congress, approved on the 13th of July last, entitled "An act further to provide for the collection of duties on imports, and for other purposes," do hereby declare that the blockade of the said ports of Beaufort, Port Royal, and New-Orleans shall so far cease and determine, from and after the first day of June next, that commercial intercourse with those ports, except as to persons and things and information contraband of war, may, from that time, be carried on, subject to the laws of the United States, and to the limitations and in pursuance of the regulations which are prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury in his order of this date, which is appended to this Proclamation.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, this twelfth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand (L. S.) eight hundred and sixty-two, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-sixth. ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

By the President:

WM. H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.

SECRETARY CHASE'S CIRCULAR.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, May 12, 1862.

REGULATIONS RELATING TO TRADE WITH PORTS OPENED BY PROCLAMATION.

First—To vessels clearing from foreign ports, and destined to ports opened by the proclamation of the President of the United States, of this date, namely, Beaufort, in North Carolina; Port Royal, in South Carolina; and New-Orleans, in Louisiana; licenses will be granted by Consuls of the United States, upon satisfactory evidence that the vessels so licensed will convey no persons, property or information contraband of war, either to or from the said ports—which licenses shall be exhibited to the Collector of the port to which said vessels may be respectively bound, immediately on arrival, and if required, to any officer in charge of the blockade; and on leaving either of the said ports, every vessel will be required to have a clearance from the Collector of the Customs according to law, showing that there has been no violation of the conditions of the license. Any violation of the said conditions will involve the forfeiture and condemnation of the vessel and cargo, and the exclusion of all parties concerned from any further privilege of entering the United States during the war, for any purpose whatever.

Second—To vessels of the United States clearing coastwise for the ports aforesaid, licenses can only be obtained from the Treasury Department.

Third—In all other respects the existing blockade remains in full force and effect as hitherto established and maintained; nor is it relaxed by the proclamation except in regard to the ports to which the relaxation is by that instrument expressly applied.

(Signed) S. P. CHASE,

Secretary of the Treasury.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 13.

THE POST-OFFICE AT NORFOLK.

T. P. THOM, of the Contract Office, Post-office Department, left Washington to-day for Norfolk, to open the Post-office at that place. The mails will be sent by the old route, via Fortress Monroe.

A PLOT AND COUNTERPLOT.

The new secession plot to induce the intervention of the Powers of Western Europe, on the ground of the expectation of cotton, which comes to light in this country to-day by the arrival of the Jura, is felicitously met by the President's Proclamation, announcing the opening of New-Orleans, and other cotton ports, on the first of June. Thus falls the second grand conspiracy abroad.

THE ADJOURNED CAUCUS OF CONSERVATIVES.

The adjourned meeting of Conservative members of Congress to-night, at the Capitol, was attended by about the same number that were at the first—a few over fifty. Their action fully sustained the view I have before taken of the movement. It was merely a legislative caucus to procure organized opposition to mischievous bills pending in Congress, and had no reference to National party schemes. When the first meeting was called the Lovejoy bill was before the House, and the principal object of the caucus was to secure its defeat. The decided demonstration of Friday's meeting had the desired effect, and yesterday the obnoxious bill was so materially modified as to lose its most objectionable features. As there is no other measure of like objectionable character now pending in the House, it

[illegible] FOR NEW-ORLEANS.

[illegible] of Congress are seriously considering the [illegible] of Government sending provisions to New-Orleans for the relief of the inhabitants, who, according to accounts, are in a most critical condition from lack of food.

THE NEW-YORK CANALS.

The report out of the Legislature of New-York, against the canals at the service of the Government, [illegible] to allow the enlargement of the canal-locks [illegible] adequate to the passage of vessels able to [illegible] the lake from hostile attack, was passed on the table of Congress this morning, accompanied by a letter from Capt. Hamilton, and also by extracts [illegible] from the London [illegible] showing the dangerous condition of American commerce on the lakes, and the ability of England at any time to take immediate and complete control of them. Gov. MORGAN, acting under a joint resolution of the State Legislature, has especially appointed Hon. Benson A. Simonson, late Canal Commissioner, to visit Washington, and invite the attention of the National Government to the great importance of the national interests involved in the premises.

ATTENTION TO ADJOURNMENT.

Members of Congress, at the current to-night, were surprised and disturbed to hear the sentiment that all [illegible] Republican Senators had declared that Congress should not adjourn while the war continued. The action of the Senate, so far, on propositions of adjournment, indicates that such purpose of holding on is ascertained by a majority of that body.

MR. SILAS SECRETARY.

The Military Committee of the Senate to-day reported that they have visited the battle-field at Lone Star, etc., and after the fullest inquiry the circumstances of the case would admit are fully satisfied the charges against Gen. Barry of drunkenness is without foundation and unsupported by the slightest evidence. This further say he is one of the first officers of his rank, always ready and able to perform promptly every duty assigned to him.

CONFIRMED.

HARVEY BROWN was yesterday confirmed as Brevet Brigadier-General of the United States Army.

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Representative LOVEJOY's bill, which has passed both Houses, establishes a department of Agriculture with a Commissioner's salary of $3,000 per annum, as chief executive officer. It is separate and distinct from any other department, exclusively devoted to the interests of Agriculture. The Commissioner is required to report to the President and Congress.

THE PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 13.

Mr. McDOUGALL, of California, (Opp.,) from the Special Committee, reported back the Pacific Railroad bill, and moved that it be made the special order for Thursday next.

The motion to make the Pacific Railroad bill the special order for Thursday was rejected by Yeas 17, Nays 18.

On motion of Mr. WILKINSON, of Minnesota, (Rep.,) the bill to protect the Indians who have adopted civilized habits was taken up.

After discussion, the bill was passed.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, (Rep.,) from the Military Committee, reported a joint resolution to provide for the presentation of medals of honor to distinguished men and volunteers. Passed.

Mr. WILSON also offered an amendment to the resolution offered by his colleague (SUMNER) in regard to placing the names of battles on the colors of regiments, as follows:

Resolved, That the President be authorized to permit such regiments as have or may distinguish themselves by conspicuous gallantry in battle to inscribe the names of the battles in which such regiments are engaged on their flags.

Mr. WILSON said he should call up the resolution again.

On motion of Mr. CHANDLER, of Michigan, (Rep.,) the bill for the better protection of the revenue was taken up.

The bill authorizes the President to refuse a clearance to any vessel, and to prohibit the importation of any goods, when he has reason to believe the goods are intended in any way to reach or benefit the rebels; and gives the Secretary of the Treasury power to prohibit transportation on any vessel or railroad any goods which are intended for or likely to fall into the hands of the rebels.

The Indian Appropriation bill was then taken up and considered until the adjournment.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 13.

Mr. LOVEJOY, of Illinois, (Rep.,) moved that the House concur in the Senate's amendments to the bill establishing a depôt of agriculture.

Mr. PERRY, of Missouri, (Union,) expressed his opposition to the bill. If it had provided merely a Bureau of Statistics and Agriculture to be connected with the duties now discharged by the Commissioner of Patents, it should have received his (PERRY's) support, but believing that it would create another Cabinet officer, he moved to lay the amendments on the table.

This was disagreed to by 14 against 89.

The amendments were then concurred in, so the bill is finally passed.

An amendment was adopted authorizing the appointment of a special agent, whose business it shall be to detect and prosecute frauds.

Various amendments were debated, the general system of pensions entering into the discussion, when the bill was passed.

It provides that officers and men of all grades, in the army and navy and other branches of the service, who have been, since the 4th of March, 1861, or shall hereafter be, disabled by reason of wounds or disease contracted in line duty, shall be placed upon the list of pensioners accordingly, (Colonels and all others of higher rank of pensioners, (Colonels and all others of higher rank of pensioners, to receive $30 per month; Majors, $25; Captains, $21; First Lieutenants, $17; Second Lieutenants, $15; non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates, $8. In the naval service, Captains, Commanders, Lieutenants Commanding and Masters Commanding, $30 per month; Lieutenants, Chief Engineers, Surgeons, and Passed Assistant Surgeons, $25; Professors of Mathematics, Assistant Surgeons, Paymasters and Master, $20; First Assistant Engineers, Pilots, and Assistant Paymasters, $18; Teachers, Schoolmasters, Passed Midshipmen, Gunners and Paymasters' Clerks, Second and Third Assistant Engineers, Masters' Mates and warrant officers, $15; all petty officers, $8. All commissioned officers of other service shall receive only such pensions as is provided for. If any officer or other person named in the first section has died since the 4th of March, 1861, or shall hereafter die by reason of any wound or disease, &c., his widow, or his children under eighteen years of age, shall be entitled to the pension, which is to continue to the widow during her widowhood, or to her children until they severally attain to the age of eighteen years, and no longer.

Where any officer or other person named, shall have died subsequently to the 4th of March, 1861, or shall hereafter die, and has not left or shall not leave a widow or legitimate child, but has left or shall leave a mother who was dependent upon him for support, in whole or in part, the mother shall be entitled to receive the pension, provided the pension given to the mother on account of her son shall terminate on her marriage; and provided, that where any officer or other person has not left or shall not leave a widow nor legitimate child, nor mother, but has left or may leave an orphan sister or sisters, under eighteen years of age, who were dependent on him for support in whole or in part, they shall receive the pension to continue until they shall severally arrive at the age of eighteen and no longer. The widow of any volunteer who shall hereafter be killed or die of wounds or disease contracted while in the military service during the present rebellion, and before receiving the bounty herein provided for, and if no widow the minor child or children, if there be any, and if there be no minor children, then the mother, and if no mother then the father of such deceased soldier, shall receive in addition to all arrears of pay and allowances for bounty of one hundred dollars, and no money shall be paid to such, or to any heirs of any deceased soldier on account of bounty, back pay or pension, who have been in any way engaged in, or who have aided or abetted the existing rebellion in the United States; but the right of such disloyal heir, or heirs, of such soldier, shall be vested in the loyal heir, or heirs, of the deceased, if any there be in the order named. A special agent is to be appointed to detect and prosecute frauds upon the pension laws.

Mr. STANTON, of Kentucky, (Union,) reported back from the Committee on Ways and Means the bill to [illegible]

[illegible] Committee on Ways and Means, reported back the bill to authorize the issue of Treasury notes, and moved the previous question on its passage.

Mr. CRITTENDEN, of Kentucky, (Union,) moved to lay the bill on the table. Carried—Yeas 77, Nays 57.

Mr. STANTON, of Kentucky, (Union,) reported back from the Committee on Ways and Means the bill to provide for the collection of duties on imports and internal revenue to support the Government and to pay the interest on the public debt.

Mr. STANTON said he should call up the resolution again.

Mr. CHANDLER, of Michigan, (Rep.,) from the Committee of Conference, reported a joint resolution to provide for the presentation of medals of honor to distinguished men and volunteers. Passed.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, (Rep.,) from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported a joint resolution to provide for the presentation of medals of honor to distinguished men and volunteers. Passed.

Mr. WILSON also offered an amendment to the resolution offered by his colleague (SUMNER) in regard to placing the names of battles on the colors of regiments, as follows:

Resolved, That the President be authorized to permit such regiments as have or may distinguish themselves by conspicuous gallantry in battle to inscribe the names of the battles in which such regiments are engaged on their flags.

Mr. WILSON said he should call up the resolution again.

On motion of Mr. CHANDLER, of Michigan, (Rep.,) the bill for the better protection of the revenue was taken up.

The bill authorizes the President to refuse a clearance to any vessel, and to prohibit the importation of any goods, when he has reason to believe the goods are intended in any way to reach or benefit the rebels; and gives the Secretary of the Treasury power to prohibit transportation on any vessel or railroad any goods which are intended for or likely to fall into the hands of the rebels.

The Indian Appropriation bill was then taken up and considered until the adjournment.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 13.

Mr. LOVEJOY, of Illinois, (Rep.,) moved that the House concur in the Senate's amendments to the bill establishing a depôt of agriculture.

Mr. PERRY, of Missouri, (Union,) expressed his opposition to the bill. If it had provided merely a Bureau of Statistics and Agriculture to be connected with the duties now discharged by the Commissioner of Patents, it should have received his (PERRY's) support, but believing that it would create another Cabinet officer, he moved to lay the amendments on the table.

The amendments were then concurred in, so the bill is finally passed.

An amendment was adopted authorizing the appointment of a special agent, whose business it shall be to detect and prosecute frauds.

Various amendments were debated, the general system of pensions entering into the discussion, when the bill was passed.

It provides that officers and men of all grades, in the army and navy and other branches of the service, who have been, since the 4th of March, 1861, or shall hereafter be, disabled by reason of wounds or disease contracted in line duty, shall be placed upon the list of pensioners accordingly

CORPORALS FOR $250,000 OF "THE NEW-YORK COUNTY COURT-HOUSE STOCK."—Sealed proposals will be received at the Comptroller's Office, until SATURDAY, May 17, 1862, until 2 o'clock P. M., when the same will be publicly opened by the Trustees of Sinking Fund of the New-York County Court-house Stock, authorized by Chapter 327, of the Laws of 1861, and by unanimous of the Board of Supervisors, approved by the Mayor, April 18, 1862.

The stock is to provide means to pay for the land required for a county court-house, and to erect such Court-house, and will bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum, payable half yearly, on the first days of May and November, and the principal will be redeemable by annual installments of one hundred thousand dollars each, commencing with the first day of November, A. D., 1862.

The proposals will state the amount of stock desired, in multiples of one hundred dollars thereof; and the prices at which the proposals are accepted, will be required to account with the County Treasurer, within fifteen days after the opening of the bids, the sum awarded to them respectively.

On presenting to the Comptroller the receipt of the County Treasurer for such deposits, the parties will be entitled to receive certificates for equal amounts of the par value of the stock, bearing interest from the dates of payment.

Interest coupons will be paid and indorsed. Proposals for New-York County Court-house Stock," and inclosed in a second envelope, addressed to the Comptroller. The right is reserved to reject any or all of the bids, if the Board consider it to be for the interest of the County.

CITY OF NEW-YORK, DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE, May 6, 1862.

THE RECEIVER OF THE CLEVELAND AND PITTSBURGH RAILROAD COMPANY gives notice that the assets of the Company are in his hands, subject to the direction of the United States Court for the Northern District of Ohio; that by the order of the Court the earnings of the road can be applied to the payment of any of the unsecured indebtedness of the Company. All the earnings, after paying operating expenses, rent and mortgage interest, will be applied to the payment of those debts, which are due and secured, amounting at the present time to about a million of dollars. The unsecured interest on the three old mortgages has all been paid for from the earnings of the road, and the same interest is now in exchange for the unsecured indebtedness, payable in July, 1862. The Holders of the River Improvement Bonds, Dividend Bonds and Bills Payable, who have not yet accepted the terms of compromise offered them by the approval of the United States Court are notified that unless they notify me on or before the 20th day of June, 1862, or they will not be entitled to receive any portion of the earnings of the road. Interest will be paid only to those who accept the terms.

Prior liens can be obtained in exchange for any unsecured indebtedness at the office of the Company in New-York, 44 Wall-st., New-York City, or of ruined Virginia, and they had had quite enough of it.

J. N. McCULLOUGH, Receiver.

THE MOVEMENT AGAINST NORFOLK.

The citizens of Williamsburgh are intense and open in their proclamation of secessionism. The place is a famous nest of decayed descendants of the "First Families," whose main patrimony is pride, and whose leading passion is hatred of any man among them who rises by his own merit and industry. This they consider a vulgar, Yankee habit, and they make war upon it with all the rancor of a baseless aristocracy and sentiment that grows sour and malignant as it grows old and incapable of making its hatreds effective. This is the seat of William and Mary College, where Prof. BRYANT TUCKER instilled State-Rights-ism into the minds of the Southern youth, and where, ten years ago, he wrote the Partisan Leader, as a manual and programme for the treasonable conspiracy which was even then maturing in the Southern mind. The whole tone of the place is false, un-American and Anti-Republican, and it is not at all surprising that it should have been a hotbed of secession. The ladies of the place are especially and intensely vehement in their avowal of secession sentiment. One, a widow, whose husband used to trade largely in New-York, and who told me that for years she were no dresses but those that came from STEWART's,—after having her house crowded for days with rebel officers and soldiers, who spent the day (as one of the servants told me) in "cussing and swearing" at the men,—was greatly horrified to hear profane language upon the lips of Union troops, and applied to have the guard doubled to prevent the soldiers from dropping into the kitchen and interrupting her servants at their work! For the first day or two none of the ladies in town would go to the hospitals to look after their own wounded, pretending that they were afraid to go into the streets among the Northern soldiers; and when they were finally given to understand that they must give some care to these wounded men, some half-dozen of them marched into the hospitals with secession badges on their breast! I believe they became gradually tamed down under the vigorous and energetic let-alone policy which our troops, by common consent, adopted toward them, and yesterday I saw quite a number of them parading the streets very much as if nothing unusual were going on. I have detected not a few, moreover, from a half-open window blind, holding furtive conversations with the Yankee sentry at the door—for the moment our army entered the town, a guard was placed at every door, and no person was permitted to enter without express permission of the occupant. It is not easy to say to what these stolen interviews may eventually lead. One thing is very clear,—the "best blood of Virginia" is quite capable of still further improvement.

There is one point I desire to impress upon the people of the North. The inhabitants of this part of the Peninsula are on the verge of starvation. The Southern soldiers had absolutely swept them bare of everything, and now the National troops come to gather up the gleanings. Their corn, their cattle, everything they had for themselves and their slaves has been consumed; they have no crops for the coming season and their condition is truly deplorable. It would be a great boon to them if trade could be speedily opened between them and the North.

So much for Williamsburgh and the advance of the army of the Potomac beyond it. The retreating rebels, if they continue their route to Richmond, will be speedily hemmed in,—as it is understood the Galena and two of our gunboats have gone up the James River, while FRANKLIN has landed at West Point. I still adhere, however, to my opinion that the rebel army has been too quick for us,—that a very large portion of it will have crossed the James River before our gunboats reached it, and that the Confederate States cannot muster in front of Richmond a force sufficient to make any respectable resistance to our advance upon that place. So far as Virginia is concerned, the rebellion is over. She suffered herself to be dragged into this most iniquitous conspiracy against the will of her people, and now she is reaping her reward.

Half a century of her own unaided efforts cannot place her back where she stood when the rebellion broke out:—and nothing but a vigorous, bold, prompt infusion of free labor into her industrial system will ever redeem her from the curse of her false pride and her falser institutions.

With these convictions as to the speedy close of the rebellion, I turned my face homeward, and arriving here too late for the boat for Old Point and Baltimore, I am domiciled for the night in the deserted, unfurnished, comfortless but most hospitable extemporized quarters of Gen. JAMES H. VAN ALLEN, whom, with his usual excellent judgment, Gen. McCLELLAN has appointed Military Commandant and Governor of Yorktown and Gloucester.

H. J. R.

The Preparations for the Advance on Norfolk.

FORTRESS MONROE, Saturday Morning, May 10, 1862.

We are all excitement here, on account of the expedition now under weigh to Norfolk. I arrived yesterday afternoon and took a room on the excellent steamer Adelaide for Baltimore, intending to return at once to New-York. But at about 5 o'clock, half an hour before her time for starting, word came down from the Fortress that she was to be detained for the service of the Government. So we all had to trundle ashore, bag and baggage, while a regiment of infantry and a battery of artillery marched on board and took possession. A large number of steamers lying here were put in requisition for a similar service. No secret was made of the fact that the expedition was intended for Norfolk, which, according to the most reliable evidence we can get here, has been evacuated. Mention has been made in the dispatches to the Associated Press of the arrival here of a steam-tug which deserted the rebel fleet at Norfolk and came in here on Thursday, and of a report brought by her master and crew that Sewall's Point was being evacuated. These same men also stated that the rebel troops were leaving Norfolk, and that preparations were making to destroy all the public buildings and the Navy-yard. Last night, from 5 o'clock all through the evening, a bright light was visible in that direction, and dense clouds of smoke showed clearly enough that all the barracks and works of every kind, all along the shore from Sewall's Point, were being burned.

At about 7 o'clock last evening a heavy rifled gun on Sewall's Point threw a shell toward the Rip Raps, upon which the two heavy guns on the latter shelled Sewall's Point for nearly two hours. What effect was produced of course we could not tell,—but the scene presented was highly picturesque. We stood upon the beach,—the sea perfectly smooth and reflecting, as in a mirror, the hundreds of lights that glanced fitfully along from the vessels gliding to and fro, as well as the moon and stars which hung serenely over the scene. Every instant a bright flash from the Rip Raps lighted up the Bay, and was followed by the heavy explosion of the guns and the roar of the great shell it sent on its mission of destruction. The steamboats lying at the wharf on our right were all alive with the songs and cheers of the embarking troops, while on our left, some few rods off, lay the Commodore, discharging the 900 wounded whom she had brought down from the scene of the fight on Monday last. She presented a terrible spectacle. Every stateroom, every berth, every foot of space on both her upper and her lower decks, were crowded with these poor, maimed, suffering and dying victims of the rebellion. They lay upon the floor,—a few with mattresses under them, more with a blanket, and by far the greatest number without anything whatever between their bruised and mangled limbs and the hard boards. They exhibited wounds of all kinds,—and evinced every degree and variety of suffering. Two or three Sisters of Charity were doing all in their power to aid them,—Dr. CURTIS, the able and accomplished surgeon of this post, was unwearied in his attentions, and they received such care as the case would admit. Ambulances and horse cars were quickly loaded with such of them as could be removed and they were taken at once to the hospital. Others were carried ashore on litters,—while a very large number, all indeed who preferred to do so, were left on board and taken to Baltimore. It was a terrible sight, and while I am ready and disposed to make every possible allowance for the extreme difficulty of making what will strike an observer as adequate provision for such emergencies, I cannot help thinking that all that was possible has not been done for the comfort of our wounded. Some ten or fifteen of our New-York and Massachusetts surgeons were sent to the front at Williamsburgh, on Thursday, where they will find few but the rebel wounded to care for, while here have been thrown into this place a thousand of our own men, whose wounds demand instant and constant care. Then there ought to have been motives of some kind for them to lay upon,—more abundant to care for them and better arrangements for providing food. Still, I feel bound to say that nothing could be more admirable or vigorous than the manner in which those of our people who were in attendance performed their labors.

The bombardment from the Rip Raps elicited no reply from Sewall's Point, and I presume it was wasted upon deserted works and abandoned barracks. The single rebel gun fired at 7 o'clock was probably a parting salute,—and I have no doubt that as our troops advance to-day, they will enter Sewall's Point and Norfolk without the slightest opposition.

At about midnight, two of our transports got under weigh, and in two hours landed two thousand men at Pleasure Point, which is quite far around the shore, away from Sewall's Point, and just about as distant, by crossing the headland, from Norfolk. I inclose an outline map of the coast, from which the nature of the movement can be traced. The dotted lines represent the route our troops will take.

They met no resistance, and, indeed, found no works or signs of an enemy at Ocean View. They will push forward at once across the land, in hopes to secure some bridges by which the streams of the region are to be crossed,—the principal one being over Tanner's Creek. The distance from the place of debarkation to Norfolk is about fifteen miles, and it is believed they will have no difficulty in reaching that city to-night or early to-morrow morning. Gen. WOOL, with Secretary CHASE, left at 6 o'clock this morning. Other troops are to be embarked during the day as rapidly as possible, and by to-morrow night Norfolk will probably again rest under the Stars and Stripes. I shall accompany the first of the transports to-day.

NEWS FROM NORFOLK.

Quiet in the City—High Prices of Provisions—The Fortifications Occupied by National Troops—Policy of the Rebel Government—Destruction of Tobacco, &c.

NORFOLK, Va., Monday, May 12.

The city continues very quiet. Most of the stores are closed, but it is expected they will open in a day or two, except in cases where the occupants have left the city with the army. Some excitement still prevails, but it is supposed in a few days, when communication is fully opened with the Northern ports, confidence will be completely restored.

Prices of almost everything are astonishingly high. Candles, for instance, of miserable quality, are 60 cents a pound; common brown paper envelopes, 50 cents a package; and brown sugar, 20 cents a pound. A number of stores will be opened, however, in a few days, by parties from Old Point and Baltimore, who will bring supplies of articles much wanted here.

The Post-office and Custom-House will doubtless be reopened very shortly.

Very little Union sentiment is openly expressed.

All over the city our soldiers, both privates and officers, freely talk with the citizens, which must produce a good effect.

All the fortifications in the vicinity are occupied by Union troops, and all the public property is in the possession of the National authorities.

The policy of the Confederate Government appears to be to concentrate their troops at Richmond, and some even say that all the Gulf States will be given up before Virginia, and that Richmond will be held to the very last.

All insist that a desperate resistance will be made at Richmond, if nowhere else.

Several negroes arrived from Suffolk this morning, and report that no troops or guns or fortifications are there, or on the road this side.

Among most of the citizens here, little confidence is felt in the officers of the Confederate Government.

Confederate notes are refused in many places. Gold and silver are welcomed with enthusiasm by all classes of the population, many of whom have not seen either for many months.

Elizabeth River, between Norfolk and Portsmouth, is of a deep coffee color on account of the tobacco which has been thrown into it in large quantities. Some of it was recovered to-day in a damaged state.

Gen. VIELE, the Military Governor, pursues a course calculated to produce the impression of the superiority of the National Government. He throws no obstacles in the way of transacting private business, or in the enforcement of the ordinances of the city Government.

The Day Book newspaper will be continued as an afternoon issue of a morning edition, on condition that it shall be respectful in its tone. The last issue

BEYOND WEST POINT.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

NEAR WEST POINT, Va., Friday, May 9.

The south side of York River, opposite West Point, presents a most surprising spectacle. One of the most quiet and retired of places has in a day become peopled by thousands, and its waters vie with the harbors of New-York and Philadelphia in the extent and style of its shipping. A giant host sweeps over the plains adjacent to the river, actively preparing to strike telling blows upon the rebellion.

Important changes, even while I write, are making which bode no good to the rebels. Events crowd upon each other, and you will soon hear of startling occurrences. But I forbear. Our men are eager for the pursuit—more especially that they have discovered evidences of rebel atrocities too horrible for human nature to bear.

Yesterday the body of one of our soldiers was found sitting against a tree, with his throat cut, the evidence of his having been wounded before the foul deed was done being plainly visible. Another was brought in with his head crushed in, probably with the heel of a boot.

Several of our wounded men were found in a house in the neighborhood, to-day, and brought in. Geo. S. GANNON, one of them, tells me that when his company was pressed back at one time, he was shot in the leg and fell. Soon some long-haired troops rushed upon him with threatening gestures. He begged for quarter, but was answered, "No quarter!" "I expected humane treatment from Texans," he said. "You shall have it," said one of them. "No one ever asked hospitality of a Texan in vain." He was carried through their lines and into the presence of their General, who questioned him closely as to our strength, and as to the extent of the woodland between him and the river. On learning that there was an extensive clearing within, he was anxious to find a guide. GANNON estimates their force at 15,000, while ours was about 10,000. He was carried to a house which was full of the dead and wounded of the rebels, then to another with a like result, then to a third, and then to a fourth. Here he found a place amidst crowds of their wounded. He thinks their loss was very great.

A farmer confirms his statement to the effect that they lost a Colonel and a Quartermaster—both being killed.

A General told this farmer that were Gen. McCLELLAN not at hand with 60,000 troops, he would kill every d—d Yankee at West Point.

The landing of heavy masses of troops has been going forward all day, and the column has moved off steady and determined, presenting a magnificent spectacle.

Eltham, a few miles beyond, is the halting place to-night. I will write you from the advance to-morrow.

THE COAST SURVEY.

When the attack on New-Orleans was in preparation, the Superintendent of the Coast Survey detailed a surveying party under the command of Assistant T. H. GUESS, to join the attacking forces and render them all the assistance in their power. The other officers of the party were Messrs. J. S. HARRIS, (also of the United States Boundary Commission corps,) J. G. OLTMANS, R. E. HALTER and T. C. BOWIE. Mr. HALTER had previously joined the fleet and had rendered efficient service in sounding out the Passes of the Mississippi and placing buoys. Com. PORTER acknowledges the important services rendered by this Coast Survey party in a letter to Prof. BACHE, from which we make the following extracts:

HARRIS'S LANE, FORTS JACKSON AND ST. PHILIP, Tuesday, April 29, 1862.

DEAR SIR—Amid the exciting scenes here, and the many duties that are imposed on me, I must steal a few moments to tell you something of the share the Coast Survey has had in our doings, and to thank you for the valuable assistance rendered me by the party you sent out here, whose value I knew, and whom I appropriated the moment the Senior Officer, Mr. GUESS, and the others in the Sachem, came. The results of our mortar practice here have exceeded anything I ever dreamed of, and I am mainly indebted for my success to the accuracy of positions marked out, under Mr. GUESS' direction, by Mr. HARRIS and Mr. OLTMANS. These made, in fact, a complete and minute survey, from the Jump up to the forts, most of the time exposed to fire from shot and shell, and from sharpshooters from the bushes. The last day they were at work, while Mr. OLTMANS was putting up a station within twenty-six hundred yards of the batteries, and in a boat with only four men, he was attacked from the bushes by what, they call their sharpshooters, which are no sharpshooters at all, as they shot no one in the boat. The boat's crew drove them off with their rifles; and Mr. OLTMANS went on quietly with his work, and carried out my instructions to the letter. The position that every vessel was to occupy was marked by a white flag, and we knew to a yard the exact distance of the hole in the mortar from the fort; and you will hear in the end how straight the shells went to their mark. Mr. OLTMANS remained constantly on board, to put a mortar-vessel in position again when she had to haul off for repairs, or on account of the severity of the enemy's shot and shell. You may judge how that was, when I tell you that the Foxe, the head vessel of the line Mr. OLTMANS moved in position, had on one occasion 125 shot fall alongside of her in one hour and fifty minutes. Only one struck her, fortunately.

Mr. HARRIS had charge of fixing positions of the vessels on the right hand side of the river, and although they tried their best to drive him away from his duty, he never moved until the duty was fully accomplished. He put the vessels in the positions I assigned, and staid on board while they were exposed to the fire of the heaviest guns in the fort. One ten-inch shot went through the magazine of the vessel he was on board of, but he stayed and watched the shell fall, until we were forced to place her in a more secure though closer position. I cannot speak too highly of these gentlemen. I assure you that I shall never undertake a bombardment unless I have them at my side. Mr. GUESS has been indefatigable in superintending the work, laboring late at night in making charts and providing the officers in command of ships with them—marking the positions of obstructions in the channels, and making all familiar with the main way. No accident happened to any ship going through, notwithstanding the gentlemen in the forts thought the obstructions impassable.

We in the mortar fleet received but little damage, having laid the vessels close in to the wood on the left bank of the river; covered their masts entirely with bushes, so that the enemy never saw them at all. One man was killed, six wounded, and though there was a rapid fire kept up for 144 hours, without scarcely any intermission, and seven thousand shell were thrown, not an accident happened from firing or any other cause to vessels, mortars, or men. * * * * * Twelve hours after the ships had passed the fort, six of the mortar vessels were at sea, filled with ammunition and provisions, blockading the rear of Fort Jackson, the navigation to which had also been surveyed by the Coast Survey party. Next day Fort Jackson surrendered to Flag Officer FARRAGUT. This was as it should be, for the shells made such frightful havoc in the fort that it looked like pandemonium. * * * The bombardment has been one of the most terrible that ever took place, and the fort is a perfect wreck. How the officers and men stood it I cannot conceive. What glorious heroes they would have been in a better cause!

* * * * * * *

Mr. GUESS has no doubt written you and sent you plans. I keep him pretty hard at work, but the times demand it.

You must excuse my hurried letter, but I could not omit writing to you, to thank your good fellows for what they have done for me, and to thank you for sending them. It was very curious to hear some wiseacres asking here: "What, in the name of Heaven, a Coast Survey party had to do with a bombardment?" They know now.

Yours, very truly, DAVID D. PORTER.
